

Darryl is a chatterbox and races to the local watering hole after his long day selling cars. He frequently goes with the other salesman which one, Justin is 19 and does not have a fake ID. Justin frequently ends up paying an extra amount of the bill.

- Darryl was selling a 1997 Honda Civic when his customer asked if he had ever head of Drinkr, the bill splitting app for drinkers. Darryl was excited and wanted to know more.

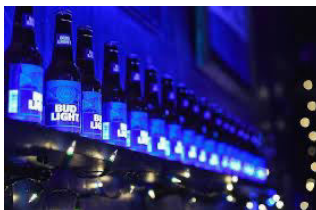

- Darryl downloaded the app and sealed the deal with the customer selling the 1997 Civic. He searched the dealer to find Justin

- He found Justin and told him he wanted to go to the local watering hole tonight and that Justin wouldn't have to pay for Darryl's drinks anymore. They rush out of work early and head to the bar.

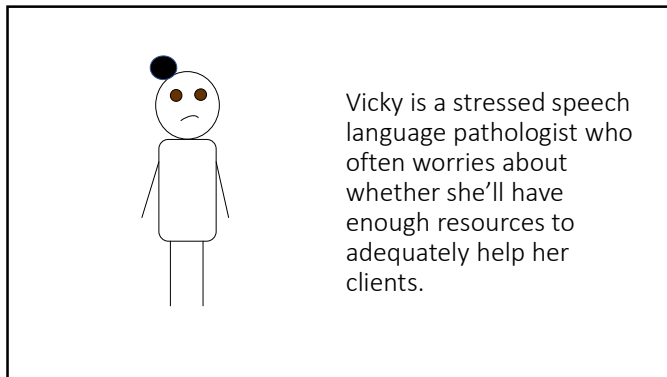

- They arrive at the bar and Darryl orders 10 bud light's while Justin only orders a Dr. Pepper. The bill comes.

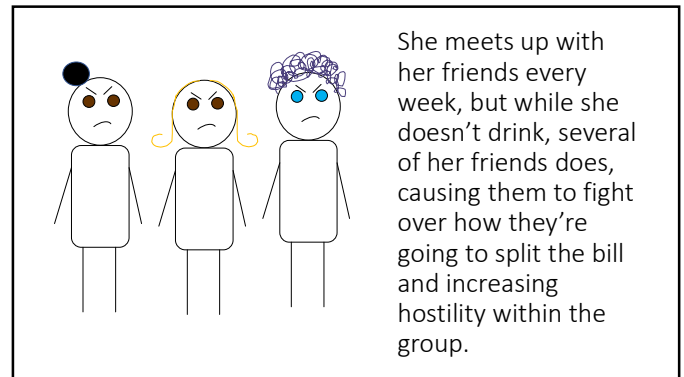

- Darryl breaks out the Drinkr app and surprises Justin. Justin is shocked. Darryl splits the bill having each other only pay for what they drank. They're both shocked at how well it works and they both drive back to their beautiful families.

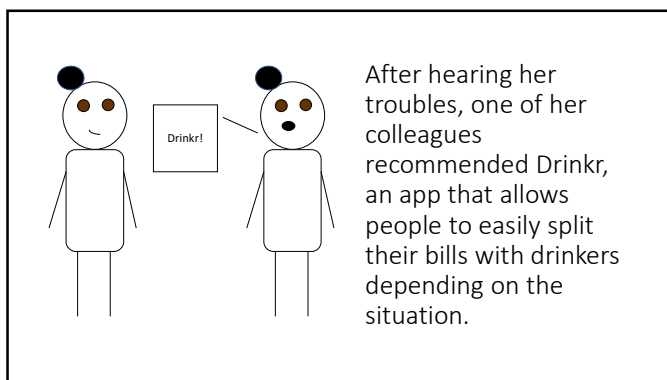

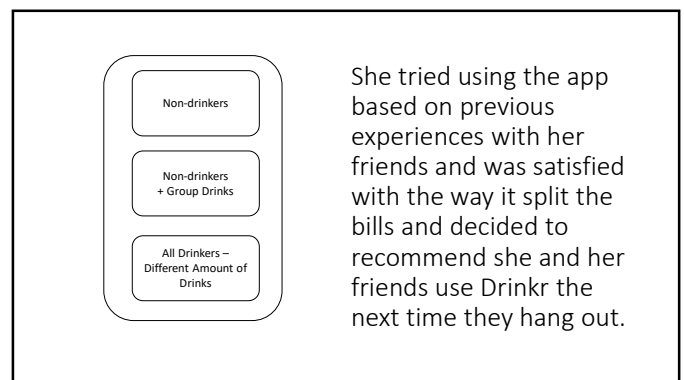

1

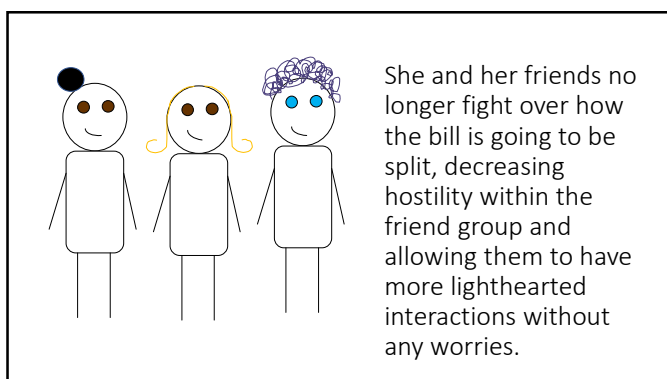

2

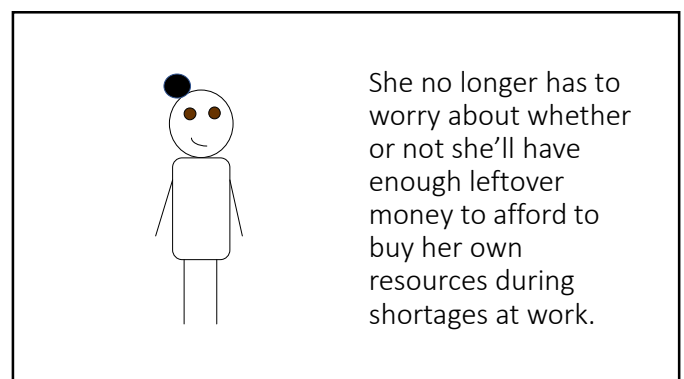

3

4

5

6

David loves to host events for his friends and they all love being apart of the activities he has for them.

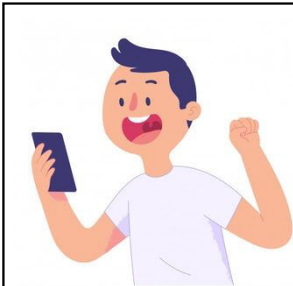

They will often end the day by going out to a bar and watching sports over some drinks, but sometimes his friends complain that they end up spending too much.

Some of David's friends get too drunk and order drinks on someone else's tab.

It get especially difficult when some of them are too drunk to remember what they ordered and who they ordered it for.

David came across the Drinkr app, and with the app they were able to organize everyone's bill and no one ended up paying for someone else's bill.

Now whenever they go out, they have no problems and due to the Drinkr app, all of their friendships were saved.

Ricky doesn't drink alcohol but frequently goes out with his friends who do drink.

Ricky and his friends have issues splitting their tabs because Ricky doesn't drink.

Ricky feels like he is covering for some of his friends drinks unfairly at times.

This is causing Ricky to spend more money than he can afford.

Ricky overhears about a new app made for splitting drink bills properly between people going out.

Ricky tells his friends and they decide that next weekend they'll try it out.

The next weekend, Ricky and his friends have a much easier time figuring out how the bill was split.

It made everything go so much more smoothly. Ricky and his friends had an easier time figuring out how to split the bill and Ricky is not wasting money.